

3rd APCISS

Fundamental Combustion Problems Applied to Diffusion Flames

November 2 – 7, 2025
Valparaíso, Chile

Our goal

The main goal of the 3rd Asia-Pacific Combustion Institute Summer School — Fundamental Combustion Problems Applied to Diffusion Flames (APCISS-3) is to introduce graduate students, industrial researchers, and practicing engineers to fundamental combustion problems, with a special emphasis on diffusion flames. We expect this school to contribute to bridge the gap between small and large scale combustion problems, as well as the creation and reinforcement of collaborative links between academic institutions and research groups across the Asia-Pacific region and South America.

The event will provide scholarships for selected students, covering accommodation and access to academic and social activities. Airfare from the home country to Valparaíso is not included.
